May 16, 2017 PROGRAM NOTES

Two TED talks were Tuesday's program. The first, presented by neuroscientist, Lisa Genova, discussed Alzheimer's and what can be done to lessen its affect. While there is no cure, experts agree that a heart healthy lifestyle is likely to reduce symptoms. Exercise, healthy diet, sufficient sleep, and stimulating activity are all recommended. The second TED talk was presented by neurosurgeon, Andres Lozano, wherein he discussed recent advances in the treatment of disorders linked to the brain. I wish I could remember what he said.
